

The Nation's Health, April 2021, Volume 51, No. 2

Nation

Public health workforce in dire need of long-term investment: Biden proposes Public Health Job Corps

Ethics at center of COVID-19 vaccine distribution debate: Prioritizing vulnerable populations

Report: Trump-era policies damaged US health care system: Decades of bad policy laid groundwork

Public health paramount in first months of Biden administration

Higher minimum wage could boost US health, pull workers from poverty

Q&A: Lost on the Frontline: 3,500 COVID-19 health worker deaths and counting: As health worker deaths mount and federal counts lag, joint journalism project documents lives lost

- Share the story of a lost health worker

Nation in Brief

- NASEM: Achieving net-zero carbon emissions in US possible by 2050

State and Local

Houston helping vulnerable young children reach their full potential

States in Brief

Globe

COVID-19 pandemic fueling rise in child hunger: Malnutrition, wasting risks rise among youth around world

WHO targets tropical diseases that infect 1 billion globally each year

Globe in Brief

Healthy You

Insider tips for handling those horrible headaches

- Don't ignore these headaches

Health Findings

Health Findings

APHA News

NPHW 2021 to showcase work to improve health: National Public Health Week observance to be held April 5-11

APHA book shares new ways to reduce gun violence epidemic

APHA event focused on building bridges to better health policy: Register now for Policy Action Institute

New APHA benefit helps members ace interviews

APHA Advocates

APHA in Brief

Report sets nation's first public health agenda: From the archives of The Nation's Health

President's Column

Celebrate our health work force for National Public Health Week: Recognizing public health achievements

Vital Signs en Español: Celebremos la labor de nuestros trabajadores de la salud durante la Semana Nacional de la Salud Pública

Journal Watch

Journal Watch

General

In memoriam

Web-only News

Newsmakers: April 2021 [e4]